Dear Parents and Carers,

Welcome to the fifth video in this online safety series, designed to support you with understanding the risks and issues children may face online and where to go for additional support.

This video covers a difficult subject: the increasing number of children being exploited online, including sextortion (financially motivated sexual extortion). This is an important area for every parent and carer to understand.

I don't go into graphic detail; the focus is on statistics and emerging issues. Even so, please consider your own wellbeing before watching, be aware of who may be able to hear the video, and consider using headphones.
